

COPYRIGHT POLICY FOR
Ludica. Annali di storia e civiltà del gioco journal published by Fondazione Benetton Studi Ricerche with the co-publisher Viella

1. Copyright

Every issue of Ludica and every article published therein, with the respective illustrations, is protected by copyright. Any re-use of the material published in Ludica requires the prior consent of Fondazione Benetton Studi Ricerche that holds the rights (see below for terms and conditions).

2. Author's costs

There are no costs to the author.

3. Author's and publisher's rights

Upon acceptance of the publication by the Direction of the journal, after a single-blind peer review process, every author of each article published in Ludica gives permission for its publication, granting free of charge to the Fondazione Benetton Studi Ricerche the exclusive right to publish; consequently, the Fondazione Benetton Studi Ricerche conveys to Viella (co-publisher) the right to print, promote and commercialize the entire single print volume of the Foundation's journal and to include it in index databases.

4. Rights of secondary publication and self-archiving

The author undertakes to respect the following points regarding the translation, dissemination or publication (whether print or online) of his/her article in any other context:

publisher's version (the article in the final and definitive print layout, with journal header and page numbers) and editorial version (the article as approved by the reviewers and editors but before being edited according to the journal standards): an embargo of 24 months. During the embargo, the author may however, for institutional purposes, publish the article in the institutional archive/repository of the University or in any of the author's affiliated institution, in a closed access format.

Any form of self-archiving or republication must mention the © Fondazione Benetton Studi Ricerche.
